Lindsey Flewelling, PhD

Dear Dr. Flewelling:

Since its establishment in 2004, the Otero County Historic Preservation Board has worked to identify, document, preserve and educate the public about the importance of the historic resources in Otero County and southeast Colorado. We are pleased to offer our support for their project to expand their outreach and educational efforts through the development of a consumable classroom workbook, and accompanying teacher resource manual, which will highlight significant historic resources in our County by using them to teach important historic and educational lessons.

The Arkansas River in Otero County was the international boundary between the United States and Spain, then later Mexico. Native Americans traveled what would become known as the Santa Fe Trail, followed by trappers, traders, ranchers, and homesteaders looking to build a better life. Hispanics traveled up the Trail to form early communities. Japanese immigrated to Otero County to work on the railroad and help establish the areas famous melon, sugar beet and onion farms. African-Americans arrived to build new lives as property owners by homesteading at The Dry, and Mennonites came to establish medical facilities, a nursing school and to farm. All these stories and many others are told through the cultural resources in Otero County yet many of our students, and adults, are not aware that these places are important or that the history associated with them has a bearing on their daily lives today.

The proposed CLG project will make great strides in bringing local, state and national history and historic themes into the daily lives of our residents. It also will help raise awareness of the importance and benefits of preserving these places that matter. We strongly encourage your full support of this project.

Sincerely,
Otero County Board of Commissioners

Rob Oquist, Chair

Tim Knabenshue
